HONGRONG, OCTOBER 13TH, 1874.

From the masterly inactivity which the local authorities have shown with reference to raising the dead bodies from the steamer Leonor, it is evident that in Hongkong, the maxim "salus populi summa lex " dose not apply. There is something searcely chortes water. the ludicrous to read in a case such as this a notification from the Captain Superintendent of Police that the vessels will have to be removed before the 15th November next. Between this and then they may work unlimited mischief and breed fevers or pestilence, and then the Government in virtue of the powers vested in it, will set to work to do what ought properly to be done within twenty-four hours of the vessel having sunk It is evident that an oversight has been made in regard to the powers placed in the hands of the Executive in cases of emergency, the agreement between Austria, Germany, and and it is to be hoped that the occurrence Russia is intact, notwithstanding that the will lead to an ordinance being passed such latter does not recognize Spain. as will enable the Local Government to act with the necessary promptness should vessels again sink in the harbour with persons on board. It is to be hoped that the Colony will not suffer as it is in this instance, but the risk that is run from a mass of putres- cable. cence lying in front of the very centre of husiness of the place is obviously very great. It might almost be thought that in a case of so much emergency the Governor would have felt justified in ordering the prompt removal of the bodies as a measure absolutely necessary for the safety of the public, but it seems that even in such cases as this cir cumlocution must have its way, and nothing be done except in accordance with the ordinances which did not provide for the contingency which has arisen.

It would, however, be quite justifiable to place powers in the hands of the Governor in Road, was sent to three days' imprisonment. Council which would enable him to meet an emergency of the kind. Under this heading the Glasgow News observes :- "We have frequently had occasion to notice the perversion of the sentiment of loyalty by unthinking persons, who mob Royalty whenever it is expected abroad; but the development of the mania as exhibited in Crathie Church on Sunday is really too serious to be laughed at. When Monarchs are concussed into receiving addresses the offence is merely one against good taste; but when mobs invade the Church to feast their eyes upon Royalty, and incontinently leave it when it becomes known that the Royal party is not to be present, the affair assumes a more serious aspect. Such was the state of matters in Crathie last Sunday. In the pariet church there a congregation was assembled, but by some means it became known that the party from Balmoral were not to be present, and then a perfect stampeds of intending worshippers took place. The Mahometan Turks of the Western provinces. who supposed that they had finally thrown off the Chinese voke now find that the Imperial power is once more becoming irresistible. Part of the lost territory bus been filrendy recovered; and the ruler of Yarkand will probably find a difficulty in maintaining his that he had been in command of the brig. independence. If the Chinese, who are naturally indifferent to danger, once succeed in organizing their forces after the European fashion, their enormous numbers will render them extremely formidable. It was always difficult to believe, except in a vague and careless manner, that three or four hundred millions of people acknowledged the authority of a single Government. Except by a great superiority of arms and discipline no existing State would find itself a match for Ohina. The Japanese came within reach of Western influences much later than their neighbours;

but they have since made for more rapid progress. The chivatrous sentiment of their romances, which is represented in their institutions by the singular practice of regulated suicide, seems to indicate the moral and perhaps the intellectual superiority of Japan to China. A still more remarkable quality was exhibited in the political revolution which immediately followed the admission of foreigners into the kingdom. The hereditary chief of a great feudal aristocracy was discovered to be n usurper, at the very moment when it became evident that it was expedient to concentrate nutho-

The Chinese have 1,026 chests Malwa. now insisted on the evacuation of the island, and, if the Japanese Government comply with their demand, the matter will be amicably arranged. As the Chinese navy contains no vessels which are capable of encountaring the Japanese ironclads, it is possible that the invadors of Formosa may rely on their naval superiority; but it would be highly imprudent to commence hostilities with an enemy who will sooner or later inevitably prevail by mere force of numbers. The Chinese and Japanese are perhaps equal in military qualities, but the resources of China are inexhaustible. If it is not thought prudent to engage in a naval contest, the Chinese will find little difficulty in landing troops in Formosa, who will be supported by the native population. The territory and the harbours of Formosa might perhaps be valuable if they could be safely acquired, and the substitution of a more civilized race for the piratical inhabitants would tend to general advantage; but no acquisition

> SHIPWRECK AND LOSS OF SIX LIVES. About nine o'clock on the morning of the 1st ulto., a boat with a man clinging to ber was observed between St. John's and the Land's End, and a boat was at once launched at Sennon and proceeded to render assistance. It was found that the bout was full of water, and that the man holding on to her was in a very exhausted state. He was taken on board, and the boat to which he had been clinging was towed into Sennen Cove. The rescued man stated that his name was Peter Dreland, and L Eclair, of Guernsey, which while on a voyage from Norway to Dublin, with a cargo of ice. had been caught off the Land's End the heavy southerly gale that blew during Comprising the Latest NOVELTIES in each Monday night. About two o'clock in the morning the vessel ran on some rocks near the Longships Lighthouse, and went down immediately, five of the crew, it is supposed, going down with her. The long boat was floated off the deck as the brig sank, and the captain and another man got into her, but in the heavy sea that was running the boat soon filled with water. She still floated, and Captain Dreland and the other man held on to her. The situation however was a peculiarly trying one, the waves washing completely over them, and the night being very dark and tempestuous. At length the man was washed away, but the captain managed to hold on until rescued by the Sennen men. He was then greatly exhausted, COSTUMES AND POLONAISES. and his arms were much swollen, whilst the boat was almost knocked to pieces.
